—With the reckiess wastefulness of tion of a black-and-tan government of which it is difficult to say whether the ineffable meanness of the white candi-dates for civil office or the bestial ignorance of the black aspirants is most to be dreaded. Formerly the city bonds of Savannah were justly regarded as among the best and most desirable securities in the state. Since it has become probable that their value will depend on the capacity and good faith of a negre savannah constitution so as to make it with the constitutio pacity and good faith of a negro govern-ment they have fallen almost to nothing, pacity and good faith of a negro government they have fallen almost to nothing and the same is beginning to be true of every species of property which will be come liable to the ordinances of rice swamp negroes and whites who would consent to associate with such animals. In nearly all the large towns the negro voters are in the majority, and conscions of their power they are determined to assert it and the same result as in Savannah must follow. When the negroes were made free, the smartest, most vicious and most accomplished rascals among them flocked to the tawns where the opportunities to steal and lead a life of brutal sensuality and idieness were so much greater than in the country. The consequence is that the negro electors of the clites and towns are the worst and most dangerous of the black population, and therefore the apprehension of the danger to property from their political ascendancy is natural and well founded.
